St. Francis Gives Donovan Degree

James B. Donovan received an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from St. Francis College Tuesday as the college dedicated its new home on Remsen St., Brooklyn.

In the principal address at the academic convocation, Mr. Donovan, who was instrumental in freeing prisoners from Cuba, said that private colleges such as St. Francis "should no longer be expected to cope with the physical and financial problems of development unaided."

The new St. Francis home is in five office buildings on Remsen between Court and Clinton Sts. in the Civic Center of Brooklyn. Its buildings in Butler St., where the college was founded in 1884, are now used by the science and physical-education departments.

St. Francis is a Roman Catholic college operated by Franciscan brothers.
